Thomas J McBride

Memorial Scholarship

Thomas J. McBride was born on August 24, 1972 and spent his early years in Oak Park, Illinois. When his family moved to St. Charles, Illinois, Tom went on to graduate from St. Charles High School and attended the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas. After his first year at the University of Kansas, Tom moved to the City of Chicago where he worked at Starbucks and later as a bike messenger for Cannonball Messenger Service. A self-taught musician, he performed with several bands around the city. Tom was an avid writer having kept a personal journal since age 13 as well as composing many essays and poems concerning a wide range of topics. From time to time during this period, he enrolled in evening classes at Harold Washington College. In the fall of 1998, he transferred to the University of Illinois Chicago Campus

Due to his often-expressed admiration of Harold Washington College and its professors, Tom's family established the Thomas J. McBride Memorial Scholarship in his memory.
