Dear Harold Washington College Community,

I hope all of you are in good health and doing well. Despite the growing concerns related to coronavirus, please know that we are here to support you and one another. There is a lot to take in and I hope that all of us are able to reflect on what we are experiencing emotionally as we move to a new learning environment. My team has been working diligently to ensure that this transition is seamless and efficient for you. Thank you for your patience and flexibility during this time.

As our community continues to cope with the coronavirus pandemic, our weekly college updates will serve as another avenue for me to communicate with you about any updates related to the on-going circumstance.

Starting next week, I will transition my office hours online. My next office hours session will be hosted on Tuesday, March 24, from 11 a.m. - 12 p.m. During this session, students are welcome to join via zoom.

Here are the College Updates for this week:

- All of you should have received the latest update in regards to classes and student services going forward. Please see that communication here.
- Starting Monday, March 23 through the end of the term, all credit classes will resume remotely, with the exception of lab and applied learning courses listed here.
- We encourage you to take advantage of the training resources featured on the covid-19 website here under the students and instructors/staff tabs.
- HWC faculty, staff, students, and admin launched a new community collective healing series online called Collective Care Fridays from 3:00 p.m. - 3:30 p.m., starting today! I encourage you to join via zoom.
